Mercola Offers Eco-Friendly Products While Supporting Green Efforts

Hoffman Estates, IL (PRWEB) April 20, 2015 – More trees are essential to a sustainable future – unfortunately, deforestation is a bleak reality all over the world. For Earth Day, Mercola.com has set a goal of planting 100k trees during the month of April. To do so, they will partner with Trees For the Future (Trees.org) to plant 1 tree for every $10 spent on Mercola.com thru April 26th.

The earth-friendly offer will help plant trees in despairing rural communities in the developing world. Mercola shoppers will be encouraged to participate by getting 10% off* every $100 order -- plus free shipping on all orders over $49.

Every year for Earth Day, environmentalists around the world reach out with efforts to help the planet. Dr. Joseph Mercola – founder of Mercola.com – believes that a sustainable and healthy lifestyle go hand-in-hand. His Earth Day offer is one of a myriad of eco-friendly initiatives already underway at the world's #1 Natural Health site.

Mercola products utilize innovative technologies to make them more eco-friendly. Some examples include krill supplements with a sustainable harvesting method, green cleaning products, and USDA certified bio-based pet poop bags that are better for the Earth. People can help support Earth Day this entire week by shopping on Mercola.com for premium products for themselves and the planet.
