Exclusive superfood formula combines organic greens, vegetables, herbal and whole food mushroom blends in a non-"green" tasting drink.

Hoffman Estates, IL (PRWEB) April 28, 2014 – Mercola.com announced today that it is adding a new proprietary product to its line of nutritional supplements.

Long awaited, Mercola Organic Greens offers an entirely new green food experience. Combining the nutritional goodness of North American alfalfa and wheat grasses, assorted organic vegetables, chlorella, spirulina, an organic mushroom blend, green matcha green tea, rhodiola, and maca root, Organic Greens boasts a light green tea taste.

"After many years of research and development, my team and I have come up with what I consider a 'green food solution' for helping people increase their daily nutrient intake when they can't get all of the vegetables and green leafy foods that are recommended," says Dr. Mercola.

"I wanted a high-quality formula that would be quick and easy to use and with a pleasing flavor without any strong green taste so common with other green drinks."

Quality was key when the team formulated Organic Greens. They insisted on verification – that their supply source be well-controlled and documented. And they wanted traceability so their organically grown greens could be traced to actual farms and fields. Lastly, to maintain ecological balance, sustainability was paramount.
