New Mercola-branded low-dose formulation of the sulfur-containing amino acid, MSM.

Hoffman Estates, February 28, 2013 – Mercola.com announced today that it is adding a new product to its line of Mercola health supplements. Considered to be one of the top health and nutrition websites in the world, Mercola.com provides health articles, wellness products, and a widely-read natural health newsletter under the ownership and direction of Dr. Joseph M. Mercola, DO, an Illinois-based osteopathic physician.

In the formulation and production of all its supplements, Mercola stresses the company's phenomenal commitment to product purity, which maintains the highest level of quality control processes through advanced technology.

"Our manufacturer uses real-time process control technology to monitor every aspect of production so customers can be assured of a superior-quality product. We even take it to the next level by having every batch third-party tested to be sure it exceeds USP monograph standards for dietary supplements."

Dr. Mercola selected MSM with Organic Sulfur Complex to help your body get adequate amounts of sulfur to meet its needs. MSM is a powerful glutathione precursor.

"We are pleased to offer this proprietary formulation of MSM to our line. MSM can be a key compound in 'donating' its sulfur," said Dr. Mercola, "and can also function as a sulfur metabolism modifier. And because it is gluten free, vegan, and not derived from shellfish, it should appeal to nearly anyone."
